DETAILED ACTION

1. The 112 rejection of claim 1 is withdrawn in view of applicant's claim amendments.
2. The rejection using Stagg et al. is withdrawn in view of applicant's claim amendments filed 05 February 2009. A new ground of rejection is given below.
3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 1-5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Renck et al. U.S. 6,815,022 B2) in view of Sharp et al. (U.S. 3,767,498).

Renck et al. teaches a paper core of a three dimensional object with adhesive binder that is coated on and penetrates holes on both sides of the paper core to join the two adhesive layers to each other (abstract). Sharp et al. teaches the use of both paper and Nomex polymer paper as good materials for the cores of sandwich panels (col. 3, lines 40-50). The instant invention claims the use of a polymer paper with perforations and a resin coating on both sides of a perforated paper core material of a sandwich panel in order to increase the strength of the core. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to have used a polymer paper as the core material of Renck et al. in view of the teachings of Sharp et al. that paper and polymer papers have a similar ability to function as core materials in sandwich panels. Selection of a specific size and number of hole to achieve a given strength for the core sheet is taken as being within the ordinary skill in the art. An increase in core strength from perforation would allow a decrease in the amount of resin used for a given strength sandwich panel. Phenolic resin is a common paper adhesive.

5. The nonstatutory double patenting rejection is based on a judicially created doctrine grounded in public policy (a policy reflected in the statute) so as to prevent the unjustified or improper timewise extension of the "right to exclude" granted by a patent and to prevent possible harassment by multiple assignees. A nonstatutory obviousness-type double patenting rejection is appropriate where the conflicting claims are not identical, but at least one examined application claim is not patentably distinct from the reference claim(s) because the examined application claim is either anticipated by, or would have been obvious over, the reference claim(s). See, e.g., In re Berg, 140 F.3d 1428, 46 USPQ2d 1226 (Fed. Cir. 1998); In re Goodman, 11 F.3d 1046, 29 USPQ2d 2010 (Fed. Cir. 1993); In re Longi, 759 F.2d 887, 225 USPQ 645 (Fed. Cir. 1985); In re Van Ornum, 686 F.2d 937, 214 USPQ 761 (CCPA 1982); In re Vogel, 422 F.2d 438, 164 USPQ 619 (CCPA 1970); and In re Thorington, 418 F.2d 528, 163 USPQ 644 (CCPA 1969).

A timely filed terminal disclaimer in compliance with 37 CFR 1.321(c) or 1.321(d) may be used to overcome an actual or provisional rejection based on a nonstatutory double patenting ground provided the conflicting application or patent either is shown to be commonly owned with this application, or claims an invention made as a result of activities undertaken within the scope of a joint research agreement.

Effective January 1, 1994, a registered attorney or agent of record may sign a terminal disclaimer. A terminal disclaimer signed by the assignee must fully comply with 37 CFR 3.73(b).

6. Claims 1-5 are provisionally rejected on the ground of nonstatutory obviousness-type double patenting as being unpatentable over claim 1 of copending Application No. 10/582,784 in view of Renck et al. Although the conflicting claims are not identical, they are not patentably distinct from each other because the instant claims would have been obvious from the perforations in the core of the claim of the '784 patent in view of the teachings of Renck et al to coat both sides of a perforated core, and the claim of the '784 patent would have been obvious over the claim of the instant core in view of its intended use in a sandwich panel. Use of the instant claimed core in a sandwich panel would inherently result in some of the perforations being adjacent the face sheets.

This is a provisional obviousness-type double patenting rejection because the conflicting claims have not in fact been patented.

7. Applicant's arguments filed 05 February 2009 have been fully considered but are moot in view of the new grounds of rejection.

8. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
